PSAT and NMSQT Test Prep Tutors

Many parents are familiar with the PSAT (Preliminary Scholastic Assessment Test), the precursor to the SAT which helps determine how ready a student is for the most important test in their educational experience. And, a student's performance on the PSAT also determines whether or not they are eligible for the National Merit Scholarship program, which can provide vital funding for college applicants.

As a first step in college entrance exams, the PSAT helps students become familiar with college entrance exam format and subject matter. Armed with their PSAT experience and scores, student study time can be more productive and the focus can be on areas where they need improvement. Z! Prep! recommends to all our high school students that they take the PSAT exam in their sophomore year.

College Admissions Consulting

Navigating the college application process can be challenging. And it starts long before the application process begins. College-bound students have to consider everything from SAT and ACT test prep, to which courses and extracurricular activities to engage in during their high school years, how to select the right schools, and managing the increasing costs of college. Having a trusted advisor to help guide you through these important decisions can mean a world of difference in your collegiate career. Don't trust your collegiate future to chance. Club Z! has developed a network of professional college admissions counselors to help students with the entire college admissions process, including:

- Planning high school academics and international transcript evaluations
- Evaluating and strategizing extracurricular activities, leadership involvement & summer internships & academic programs
- Selecting and finalizing a list of potential colleges, including planning site visits and meetings with applicable
